

ESTATE TAX REPEAL TALKING POINTS

April 2015

1. Only billionaires and multi-millionaires benefit when Republicans eliminate the estate tax.

- Republicans want to eliminate the estate tax to give a $3 million tax break to their wealthy campaign contributors. The average family will get no tax cut.
- The estate tax is levied on an individual's estate worth more than $5.4 million and $10.9 million for a married couple's estate. Estates worth less than those amounts pay nothing.
- The estate tax is paid by just the wealthiest 0.2 percent of estates, or 1 out of every 500 estates. (Joint Committee on Taxation/Center on Budget & Policy Priorities).
- Because of the high exemption level, those few estates that face the estate tax pay an effective rate of just 16.6%, on average (Tax Policy Center).

2. Billionaires and multi-millionaires do not need another tax break: especially one that hurts our ability to improve schools, rebuild roads and bridges, and fund Medicare, Medicaid and medical research.

- Estate tax repeal will lose $269 billion over 10 years (Joint Committee on Taxation).
- Meanwhile, Republicans have proposed a budget that slashes $5 trillion, mostly from services and benefits that help working families. They slash Medicare and Medicaid by at least $400 billion each; slash transportation funding by $187 billion; slash Pell Grants by $89 billion; slash food stamps by $125 billion (Center on Budget & Policy Priorities and House Budget Committee Democrats).

3. Republicans in Congress want to eliminate the estate tax mostly to reward their wealthy campaign contributors.

- The Republican plan to eliminate the estate tax is a gift to powerful lobbyists in Washington who are rigging the tax system in favor of the wealthy.
- The billionaire Koch brothers and the casino mogul Sheldon Adelson, who has already avoided $3 billion in estate taxes (Bloomberg.com), want to buy the next election. Their heirs do not need another tax loophole that will exempt them from paying estate taxes.
- Six members of the Walton family, who own a majority of Walmart, have a net worth greater than 49 million American families combined (Politifact). They do not need another tax loophole that will exempt them from paying an estate tax.

4. Republicans in Congress are supporting a budget and tax cuts for the rich that will increase the gap between the wealthy and everyone else, rather than reduce it.

- Republicans recently voted for a budget that increases taxes on some working families by $1,000 a year, on average. (Citizens for Tax Justice)
- Republicans want to eliminate the estate tax, which would give a $3 million tax break to the wealthy, on average. 318 estates worth at least $50 million would get a $20 million tax break, on average. (Joint Committee on Taxation/Center on Budget and Policy Priorities)

GOOD ONE-LINERS

- Eliminating the estate tax will be paid for by cutting Medicare, Medicaid, college aid, medical research and rebuilding our roads and bridges.
- Only millionaires and billionaires will benefit from eliminating the estate tax.
- Eliminating the estate tax would give a $3 million tax cut on average to the wealthiest Americans.
- Eliminating the estate tax will increase the wealth gap between the rich and everyone else.
